I take one small step today, and that is enough.

I am allowed to go at my own pace.

I notice what is going well.

I can do hard things, one at a time.

I treat myself with the patience I give a friend.

I am learning, and learning takes practice.

My effort counts, even when no one sees it.

I make room for what matters to me.